RAILROADS VALIDATING OFFICE SUBMITS REPORT

States That 1,053,219 Tickets From Points Beyond 250 Miles of St. Louis Were Handled During Fair Period.

The report of J. H. Norton, joint validating agent for the St. Louis lines, on business handled by the validating office during the fair period has been submitted to the St. Louis Association of General Passenger Agents.

By far the largest part of the passenger business to St. Louis during the fair period originated within this 250-mile limit. Following is a statement of tickets handled in various sections:

Table with columns for route, number of tickets, and percentage. Includes routes like St. Louis to St. Paul, St. Louis to Chicago, etc.

From April 25 to December 2, 1904, there were 1,053,219 tickets handled at the validating office for stop-over during the stop-over period.

The month of October marked the heaviest month for the validating office, with 120,000 tickets, or an average of 3,000 a day.

By careful scrutiny at the counters when tickets were presented for validation, and by inspection of tickets when tickets were offered for admission to the train, we were able to detect the transfer of 7,771 tickets from one line to another.

The sale of one-way tickets, both into and out of St. Louis, during the World's Fair, shows a heavy increase. This fact indicates clearly the effect of the restriction through around the return portions of excursion tickets through the validating agency.

By far the largest part of the passenger business to St. Louis during the fair period originated within this 250-mile limit.

The month of October marked the heaviest month for the validating office, with 120,000 tickets, or an average of 3,000 a day.

LAW RELATING TO RIVER DEFINED

Stream Dividing Two States Is Under Jurisdiction of Each, St. Louis Appellate Court Holds—Other Decisions.

The St. Louis Court of Appeals decided yesterday, in the case of State against Seagraves, that in the absence of concurrent jurisdiction of two States over a river dividing them each State has jurisdiction over the river from shore to shore in civil and criminal matters of rightful State cognizance.

Seagraves was found guilty in Cape Girardeau County of selling liquor on Sunday and appealed the case.

The evidence was that he conducted a bar on a steamer which took on excursions at Cape Girardeau on a Sunday and piled up and down the Mississippi River.

Judge Bland, who wrote the opinion of the Appellate Court, said that no sales of liquor were made near the Cape Girardeau shore and that it was uncertain whether any were made west of the divide of the river.

According to the record in the case of J. H. Schluter, who was charged with the sale of liquor on an assigned note for $50, which was decided by the Cape Girardeau Circuit Court in favor of Schluter and affirmed by the Appellate Court, the note was given May 1, 1904, under an agreement between Schluter and W. S. Savers, to purchase counterfeit money.

Schluter alleged in his answer to the suit that he and Savers were led to believe that the $500 they could purchase $20,000 of counterfeit money in New York.

Savers was rich, and offered to loan Schluter half of the $500. Schluter gave him his unsecured note, and Savers received the amount of the note in counterfeit money on their return from New York, Schluter alleged.

The evidence showed that they received and used what was supposed to be counterfeit money, but which was waste paper, with a genuine $1 bill, making $100, which was received for the $500.

Schluter alleged that the note was assigned to W. S. Savers nearly ten years after it became due.

The Court of Appeals yesterday, overruled judgments to quash the writ of mandamus issued by the Circuit Court, and James J. Butler, who was expelled from the legislature by the State Committee, to compel the members of the committee to restate them, and ten days ago allowed to file a writ of mandamus.

MANY DECISIONS RENDERED. Judge Bland rendered the following decisions: State vs. Miller, 1st District, 1st Division, 1st Circuit, 1st District, 1st Division, 1st Circuit.

State vs. Miller, 1st District, 1st Division, 1st Circuit, 1st District, 1st Division, 1st Circuit.
